

First-Class School Bus Features:

Name: _____ Period: _____

Instructions: Now that you’ve practiced writing memorable details about one feature found on your first-class school bus, you will draft a script that would provide the narration for an imaginary video that would showcase FIVE DIFFERENT FEATURES of your first-class school bus. Use this handout to help you plan out the order that your five features will be discussed, and use it to plan a structure for your script before you start drafting it on your own paper. When drafting, please be sure to create a new paragraph for each of your different features that are described with details and voice.

“Welcome aboard _____ School Bus Lines.

Order of topics to write about in my narration/script:	A memorable word or detail I’ll use in this section of my script:	Suggested transition for your draft as you leave this part and start the next:
“Welcome to First Class” (intro)		“Now let’s take a closer look at...”
Feature 1:		“In addition to [this feature], you will also find a...” Or...?
Feature 2:		“But we don’t stop there. Let’s take a look at [the next feature]...” Or...?
Feature 3:		“If it’s comfort you’re looking for, then go no further than [next feature]...” Or...?
Feature 4:		“Still not convinced? Come here and take a look at this [next feature]...” Or...?
Feature 5:		“If you didn’t see a feature today that appealed to you, just ask. We love to make our customers happy.” Or...?
“Thanks for taking the tour” (conclusion)

Once planned or structured, you can start writing your draft on your own piece of paper.

Try to use a quality and memorable detail with each of your script’s five features...
Three: My details are unique and—after hearing them—memorable. I haven’t used too many details.	Two: My details are more average than unique and—after hearing them—not many are memorable.	One: My details tell about the feature I am describing, but I don’t try to show my reader anything memorable
“3” detail sentence: Our smooth-gliding and silent dish rack allows users to load coffee cups and saucepans stealthily in the night.	“2” detail sentence: Our state-of-the-art dishwasher has a new kind of rack for your dishes that is built to last years and years from now.	“1” detail sentence: Our new dishwasher has a rack that you can put dishes on for washing and cleaning.
